Chief, Finance Division

SUBJECT: Bank Charges for "NSF"

25X1A9a

1. Mr. [REDACTED] who just returned from [REDACTED] where he was Chief, [REDACTED] wrote me the following note:

"Attached are two bank charges for "NSF" due to the failure of someone to deposit my salary check. [REDACTED] cabled Headquarters the information; however, found that my check had been mailed to the wrong bank. Then the returned check was not forwarded to the correct bank until a cable was received--a period of several weeks."

2. Mr. [REDACTED] asked that, since he was billed for $5 as a result of two checks bouncing, is there any way for such expenditures being reimbursed due to an error made by Headquarters personnel? I assume that this is just one of those things that happens and that it is the employee who has to bear the burden. Am I correct? What are your ideas on such a query? Is there any way to find out who made the error, or is it part of the machine age in which we are living.

3. Any information that I might be able to forward to Mr. [REDACTED] would be appreciated. Thanks.
